STONE ROSE:

A Contemporary Bar and Lounge

Eric Clapton could be hanging out at the bar. Cindy Crawford might be relaxing on one of the chocolate-colored couches scattered around the room. You never know who you might find at the new Stone Rose at The Fairmont Scottsdale Princess.

Nightlife entrepreneurs Rande and Scott Gerber's newest project is a contemporary bar and lounge. The cutting-edge design fuses the feel of the 1950s beach home—complete with sunken living room—with modern nightclub.

The outside features a massive white onyx bar, cream colored couches and fire pits, while the inside is more intimate with deep browns and burgundies, dim lighting, flickering candles and muted music.

The Gerbers' bars are known for their fashionable clientele, but Rande says he "builds every lounge for the locals." He envisions a hangout where people can gather after work, vacationers can relax after a day of sightseeing, and the late night crowds can gather for some good music and great drinks. Signature cocktails, created by the Stone Rose mixologists using the Gerber Midnight Bar collection of drinks, are legend.

While Stone Rose has already become a hotspot in the Valley as a place to see and be seen, Gerber stresses that the lounge really offers something for everyone. Dress is contemporary, yet comfortable. The atmosphere is glamorous, yet casual. The clientele's ages range from 20s to 50s, and they could be a local, a celebrity or a businessman from Detroit.

Aside from a great ambience, Stone Rose offers a unique food experience. Each morning the lounge serves a continental breakfast out on the patio. A full menu is available for lunch from noon until 2 p.m. At night, a bar menu is available.

At Stone Rose, you'll definitely feel like you're reaching back in time, but you'll know you're on the cutting-edge when you sip one of the margaritas and look out over the beautiful lush grounds of The Fairmont Scottsdale Princess. 🌟
